

WRITERS HOUSE INTERN PROGRAM, SPRING
2019

I AM CURRENTLY RECEIVING BONAFIDES FOR THE WRITERS HOUSE INTERN PROGRAM, SPRING 2019.

The overarching goal of the program is to provide its participants an education in the publishing industry from the perspective of a literary agency. By the end of the Writers House Intern Program, the participants:

- Will have developed sound criteria for evaluating query letters, partial manuscripts, and full manuscripts.
- Will have advanced their ability to generate rejection letters, reader's reports, editorial letters, and pitch letters.
- Will have gained new administrative skills that pertain specifically to publishing including Literary Expert, comparing contracts, reviewing royalty statements, and managing and maintaining calendars.
- Will have advanced their cover letter and resume writing skills.
- Will have advanced their job interviewing skills.

The Writers House Intern Program arrives at its goals through a series of ongoing programs; specifically, weekly Intern Meetings, Tutorials, Evening Seminars, and One-on-One Sessions. Interns will regularly engage in a broad range of editorial, administrative, organizational, and logistical duties as they develop the skills requisite to entry-level positions in publishing.

DATES: February 4 or 11 through May 24 or 31.

REQUIREMENTS: A genuine interest in the industry as a career. A sincere interest in the authors we represent. Office and publishing experience a plus. 21 West 26th Street, NYC.

DEADLINE: January 15, 2019. Although, preference is given to applicants submitting now.

PAYMENT: $200/
month stipend.

HOW TO APPLY: Please send your cover and resume to Michael Mejias at mmejias@writershouse.com